From The Director's desk

'Telling a story- beyond paintings as contemporary art' as the name suggests is a show about artists' outlook and creativity without any boundaries of concept, medium or material.

Each work tells a different story open to individualistic interpretation, a quirk which translates into the uniqueness of the show itself.

Such contemporary artistic expressions from a group of 12 young minds with origins across India and the Subcontinent resulted in some wonderful and awe inspiring artworks.

This artistic liberty taken by each of them has thus created masterpieces in their own right.

About the Exhibition

The contemporary Indian artist is bound by no medium - they react. Fueled by folklore and the inherited learning from mural painting and miniatures to name a few, the artists strive to create their idea of humanity. Keeping in mind their training these artists on display have touched upon what is real to them. While reaction ties their work together the range of concepts is wide. The move from traditional painting to modernist usage of line, form and colour is perhaps the most poignant takeaway from the works on display. The exploration of materials beyond paint and invoking simple modernist lines are what tie this show together. This exhibition features artists spanning the length and breadth of the country, and this is seen in their output.

AKSHATA MOKASHI

Tapestry and weaving artist

Tapestry weaving is a practice of meditative engagement for Akshata. Inspired by the totality of the world, of landscapes and elements in nature, she depicts through the tapestries, the feelings linked with material objects and experiences in life, by associating them with forms in nature.

She finds the impressionist style of painting and blending of textures in line with the flow she strives to communicate through her weavings. The tapestry is a translation of a painting to her.
